Methodist Collegiate Church Holds First Annual Conference

On Tuesday April 9 the Trinity Conference of the MCC had their first annual conference ever. The MCC, or the Methodist Collegiate Church is a new Methodist denomination being spearheaded by White's Chapel. The denomination is in its infancy, and the conference was the first time of reporting regarding the progress that has taken place.

The Conference was attended by representatives of the current member churches, which include Becker Methodist in Kemp, Dr. Jim Collingsworth, pastor; Community of Hope in Mansfield, Rev. Zach Stiefel, pastor; Good News Methodist in Leander, Rev. Trevor Kennedy, pastor; and White's Chapel Methodist, Dr. Todd Renner, Senior Pastor.

Conference Commission of Ministry Chairman Rev. Jon Reeves reported on new Clergy candidates and applicants and the process required for licensing and ordination credentials. Commission members Dr. Judy Hunt, Rev. Trevor Kennedy, Reeves, Dr. Todd Renner, Rev. Joy Roberson, Rev. Zach Stiefel were the Clergy Representatives, while Elizabeth Hearn, Mike Kopesec, and Bob McMillan represented laity.

"We are a collection of independent churches who have voluntarily chosen

What an awesome God! Witness of His handiwork was evident last week as the community experienced a total eclipse of the sun, many even observed the event right here on the White's Chapel campus.

Cantaré Headlines Spring Concert

White's Chapel will host a Spring Concert of fun and inspiring music presented by the WC Cantaré Youth Choir, the WC Youth Ensemble and the WC Children's Choir on Sunday, April 21 at 5 p.m. in the sanctuary. This concert will feature selections of contemporary Christian music, pop music and Broadway music sung by amazing groups of talented singers.

Make plans to be entertained and experience some inspiring moments of worship by our WC future worship leaders. The girls of Cantaré will sing

Lauren Daigle's "You Say." This song has such a powerful message. It reminds us that, even when we think we're not enough and we have failed, our Heavenly Father tells us we are loved, we are strong and we belong to Him. A fun piece that you will hear is "I'm Still Standing" by Elton John which was made popular in the movie "Sing." Cantaré will also be performing a piece called "Dance." This is a really rhythmic piece. The group has some clap and dance routines that will be performed as Harrison Whitehead plays the drum. Cantaré boys will sing a song made popular by Chris Tomlin called "I Will Rise." The WC Youth Ensemble will sing a beautiful, acappella arrangement of "Somewhere" from West Side Story plus others.

Cantaré is a unique youth community choir that includes a broad range of participants, with varying musical backgrounds, the opportunity to create exceptional music experiences together.

They are an auditioned group of dedicated singers that meet each Tuesday evening in the choir room at

Stephen Ministry Training Info Meeting Sunday, May 5

We are excited to announce that the Stephen Ministry program at White's Chapel is getting ready to start the process to select the next class of Stephen Ministers. We are proud of our 20+ years history of providing one on one compassionate caring for our church. We welcome any member of our church to reach out to discuss the program with any of our Stephen Ministers or the contacts below.

Stephen Ministry at White's Chapel Methodist Church is part of an international ministry dedicated to providing on-going and one on one Christian care in an individualized setting. Since the first White's Chapel first Stephen Ministers were commissioned in 1999, over 130 lay people have been trained in the Stephen Ministry way of providing distinctively Christian care to people in need. Today, we have 34 Stephen Ministers who provide care to our Care Receivers both from our church and the community. White's Chapel is one of over 13,000 U.S. and international congregations that have established Stephen Ministry programs, including about 1,000 in Texas. The focus of the program is to walk beside an individual and offer listening skills, prayer, and time.

Stephen Ministers are from all backgrounds, life experiences, and faith journeys but share a common trait – the desire to be a conduit for Christ's love in a special caring relationship. The journey for many has been challenging and life

The Patient Lessons of Spring...

By Dr. Todd Renner

"I feel the forest breathing and hear the slow, inexorable growth of the wood."
— Giuseppe Penone —

In recent weeks, more than at any other time in my ministry, I've sat with folks and with families facing overwhelming doubts, and I've had to remind them of the uncomfortable truth that the true life of faith is not for the faint of heart. It's not for the timid or the cautious. It's not for the lazy or lethargic. It's not the easy path that too many have assumed it to be, for it leaves no room for apathy or indifference or self-concern. The uncomfortable truth is that the path of real faith — undefeated faith — leads to a rugged and splintered cross. It leads to an anguished soul and to a sorrowful heart, to more questions than answers, and to the incredible

Mystery of God. This type of faith — this selfless and sacrificial faith — is rare. It's hard. And it requires much more of us than we want to give...more than we think is actually possible. So, it's easy to understand why so many of us don't try. In the face of such staggering odds, it's almost commonsensical to give up, to put our lives of faith on autopilot, and to let them take care of themselves. There, we satisfy ourselves with all of the outer trappings of what we think "faith" is supposed to look like but none of the dearest and deepest elements of what it really is. We settle for going to church and trying to make the right choices (most of the time). We open ourselves up in small ways to being formed by faith's subtle hands: we allow ourselves to be informed by faith, but we pull short of letting ourselves be fully transformed by it. We fear the anguish of being wrong...or, maybe worse, of being right: that faith demands a trust that scares us.

"God, where are You? Have You forgotten me completely? Are you mad? Do you care?"

It is the plea of the Psalmist. In Psalm 13, we hear him cry out like we've cried countless times: "God, where are You? Have You forgotten me completely? Are you mad? Do you care?" In that unnerving place where God is silent and where prayers seem to go unheard, the Psalmist calls out. He refuses to give up. He refuses to be defeated. He wants to go deeper; in fact, he needs to go deeper. He needs that place of transformation. But transformation takes time. And it takes trust, for it is a rigorous, time-consuming, life-consuming process of tending the fertile soil of our souls. It's waiting and watching and doing what we can — all that we can but only what we can. Like the flowers that are just now emerging from their winter slumber, God's work requires patience and devotion, for the first sprouts of growth that break free from the parched ground of our lives creep slowly into the Son's light. Deep beneath the surface, though, we must know, we must trust that the roots of love and gentleness, of hope and joy and peace are tapping into the rich springs of God's goodness — even when God feels a million miles away. Sure, there may be few outward signs of growth, and it can be a frustratingly tedious journey; but even then — especially then — we must continue to water the fragile seedlings of our faith. We need to bathe them with prayer and with worship, with silence and patience and gratitude. We need to "feel the forest breathing" and hear the growth of the wood — trusting in God's faithful provision and his unailing love.

The April Garden

Spring is finally evident as daffodils and flowering trees start to bloom. Expect the inevitable April showers this month but with sunny days too, when you can turn your attention to the lawn.

It's an exciting month, with indoor-sown seeds well into growth, and it's also time to start sowing outdoors. Just watch out for frosts...

additional moisture as needed. This saves money and conserves water.

Place your rain gauge in an open area where it won't be affected by tall trees or buildings. Be sure to empty it after every rain to ensure accurate measurements and to prevent mosquitoes from breeding in the standing water.

Plant Tender Bulbs in April

In frost-free regions, plant bulbs such as caladium, tuberous begonia, and canna directly in the garden in April. Tip: Plant tuberous begonia and caladium bulbs with their rounded side down. New growth emerges from the top (concave) side of the bulbs.

Prune Spring-Flowering Bulbs

As daffodils, hyacinths, and tulips fade, clip off their flower stalks. This encourages the plants to store energy in their bulbs instead of setting seed. Just be sure to leave the foliage alone until it fades naturally. The plant needs the leaves to make energy for next year's flowers. To camouflage bulb foliage, interplant annual flowers around the bulbs. By the time the bulbs die back completely the annuals will have carpeted the area with bloom.

Select Perennial Herbs

Thyme, lavender, oregano, chives, mint, and sage are perennial herbs that can be planted in April gardens. They require a sunny spot that receives at least six to eight hours of direct sunlight a day. If you have heavy, clay soil, mix in sand and compost at planting time to improve drainage. Herbs will not thrive in wet, mucky soil. Some herbs, such as mint and thyme, are available in a wide range of flavors and scents. Do some research before you plant to customize your herb garden to your own personal taste.

Add Birdhouses

If you haven't done so already, set out birdhouses designed for songbirds such as bluebirds, wrens, purple martens, and chickadees. Nesting songbirds will devour pesky insects that would otherwise feast on you or your garden. Select birdhouses designed with the appropriately sized entrance hole for the species you want to attract. Avoid birdhouses with perches; birds don't use them, but predators do. Do some research before you install a birdhouse to be sure you are mounting it at the correct height and location.

Improve Lawns in April

Fix bare spots in your lawn now. Rake the area to remove dead grass or other debris. Then, seed with Kentucky bluegrass, perennial ryegrass, or creeping red fescue. To help germination, barely cover the seed with soil and tamp gently. Water daily until the seed germinates. Be sure to read the label before you purchase grass seed. Look for mixes that contain less than one percent of "weed" or "crop" seeds. Also, never purchase grass seed that has less than a 70 percent germination rate listed on the label.

Plant Roses

Bare-root and container-grown roses can be planted in April gardens. For great color and easy care, select landscape varieties such as Knock Out. These tough-as-nails roses offer almost continuous bloom. Plus they look great paired with perennials such as black-eyed Susan, Russian sage, and catmint. Select a location that receives at least six hours of direct sunlight a day. Landscape roses such as Knock Out look best planted in clumps of three or more. Repeat at intervals scattered through your garden.

Monitor Rainfall

If you don't have a rain gauge, add one to your garden in April. For optimum growth, most plants require about an inch of moisture a week. With a rain gauge, you can track rainfall and apply

Replace Annuals

In frost-free regions, such as southern California and Texas, replace cool-weather annuals, such as pansy, snapdragon, and primula in April gardens with heat-loving cosmos, verbena, vinca, salvia, petunia, sunflower, and zinnia. When purchasing annuals, look for short, stocky plants with rich, green foliage. Often, those that aren't blooming yet are the best choice. Avoid leggy or wilted plants.

Move Houseplants

As soon as frost danger has passed, give your houseplants a vacation outdoors. Move them to a shady spot in your backyard where they are protected from high winds. Check them daily and gradually move sun-lovers such as succulents or hibiscus to a brighter location. Most houseplants respond quickly with a burst of new growth. Once outdoors, feed houseplants with a dilute solution of liquid fertilizer every time you water. Because the plants will be in active growth, they will appreciate being fed.

Classic Adult Fellowship

Fun with Classic Adult Fellowship

Classic Adult Fellowship, or CAF, is a great group for those 55 or better that love the Lord, new adventures, and fun. The group meets for monthly luncheons, movies, and outings. Fellowship with those in similar stages of life is a treasure!

The group enjoys free movies in Rawlins Hall on the first Thursday of every month. The recent movie, "I Believe," was a good movie with Christian values mixed with a little fantasy. CAF hosts luncheons on the last Friday of the month. We did not host a luncheon at the end of March due to Holy Week activities, but we enjoyed a very fun outing at Courtside Kitchen in Fort Worth, where we learned more about Pickleball. Transportation, a private coach, equipment, private courts, and a full spread of hot sandwiches, snacks, and even brownie ice cream for dessert was all included! All agreed that it was a beautiful day and perfect for beginner Pickleball players. We will definitely head back in the fall for more fun!

The most fun was had at our recent eclipse watching party! What an amazing site to behold as God orchestrated a phenomenal event! The group had NASA approved glasses, themed music, a beautiful spot next to Walton Chapel and the pond, and even Moon Pies as the sun was eclipsed by the moon. Everyone was in awe and loved sharing this unique experience together!

Consider joining Classic Adult Fellowship to make new friendships as well as connect with other seniors at White's Chapel. There is a seat for everyone at our table!

White's Chapel. They are made up of third through high school students.

"They love music and singing, and every Tuesday at rehearsal, they can be found having fun learning music, learning skills to make them better singers and musicians, and also just encouraging and supporting each other," said Teresa Hughes, one of Cantaré's directors.

Harrison Whitehead has sung in Cantaré since he was in third grade. He said, "Cantaré has always given me a family, a place to share my musical gifts and talents with others that love singing as much as I do. I love Cantaré because it offers a space for a wide range of ages to learn to sing and read music, which is a skill that can boost one's ability for their whole life. Seeing the music seeds being planted at such a young age is truly something special, and Cantaré is the perfect place to water those seeds."

"We have a diverse group of ages and students," said Hughes. "Our older students serve as role models and mentors to our younger singers – both benefit from the exchange." This is a wonderful ministry and great opportunity for our young people. It offers them opportunities to gain confidence and skills to perform in front of large groups of people as a choir and as soloists.

The Cantaré Choir members include: Adelyn Aelvoet, Isaiah Blalock, Leticia Bromley, Lindsey Bell, Mason Cashatt, Blythe Chen, Giselle Chester, Arabella Cummings, James Dirickson, Allison Du, Emma Edwards, Ava Gilbert, Madilyn Hooker, Sophia Kidwell, Anna Riley Lange, Ben Lee, Jacob Lee, Carter Minix, Katherine McLaughlin, Emily Phillips, Abril Picazo, Azul Picazo, Mark Pothier, Luke Reed, Anne Sabbia, Declan Sherrill, Neal Stevens, Arrae Suttles, Campbell Timmermann, Azalea Whitehead, Harrison Whitehead.

The Cantaré directors are Teresa Hughes, Kandice Whitehead and Sarah Bryson. Auditions are now being scheduled for the upcoming 2024-2025 season. Please contact Teresa Hughes at thughes@whiteschapel.org to schedule an audition. Visit Cantaretx.com for more information about the upcoming auditions as well as Cantaré.

Admission to the Cantaré Spring Concert is free and open to the church and community. Come enjoy this time of family-friendly entertainment.

to work together," said MCC Dean, Dr. John McKellar. "Because of the nature of establishing the groundwork for a new denomination the process has been slow."

Over 7,600 churches have disaffiliated from the United Methodist Church over the past three years. Approximately 3,000 of those churches did so with the intent of joining the already established Global Methodist Church.

"About 4,600 churches have become independent entities," said McKellar. "But Methodists have connection in our DNA. We seek to bring different groups of Methodists together. We want to figure out how to be the bridgebuilders."

McKellar explained that because of the heartache experienced by many of these churches through the disaffiliation process, there remains a level of hesitation and mistrust.

"These are the people we hope to reach," he said. "The job is going to be hard, but it is our goal to focus on what unites us and not what divides us. I remain proud of the sense of connectionalism we are building in spite of the fact that the MCC has no staff and requires no apportionments. We exist to do ministry."

There was much to celebrate. New church starts include LaMesa ("The Table") Methodist church in east Fort Worth and Good News Methodist, Georgetown.

LaMesa, which is being led by Rev. Jesus and Lily Molina, is adjacent to the White's Chapel Dental Clinic. Rev. Victor Resendez is liaison to that community. Good News, led by Rev. Trevor Kennedy, is a new campus planted in Georgetown, Texas, which was recently hailed as the fastest growing community in the United States.

Additionally, the addition of the Kenya Conference was celebrated with a report on the mission work there by Bishop Joe Kamau. Over 60 churches have joined the MCC in various regions of Africa.

Current negotiations are in process with churches in Texas and Louisiana.

In closing, McKellar cited 1 Thessalonians 5:9-11: "For God has destined us not for wrath but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, who died for us, so that whether we are awake or asleep we may live with him. Therefore encourage one another and build up each other, as indeed you are doing."
